MANY WAGERS ARE HELD FOR COUNT

Unofficial Count Shows Murdoch 46 Votes Ahead of Wallace.

The total vote for James D. Murdoch, Republican candidate for mayor, was 6,116, and the vote for William R. Wallace, and the vote for William R. Wallace, Democrat, was 6,070, showing a plurality of 46 votes for Murdoch over Wallace. The 46 votes by which the Republican candidate beat the Democratic candidate have won at least $5,000 for Murdoch supporters, as most of the light betting on the city election was on the relative possitions of Murdoch and Wallace in the sitions of Murdoch and Wallace in the race.

Inaccurate and incompetent to the last degree, the Tribune informed its readers yesterday that Wallace had beaten Murdoch for second place by 147 votes, and there were a few bets settled on the erroreous report in the Tribune this morning. Most of the money is being held, however, until the official canvass of the votes, which will show that Murdoch was second in the mayoralty race.

The Herald-Republican's totals given yesterday morning were 6,123 for Murdoch and 6,070 for Wallace, showing a plurality of 53 for Murdoch. Revision of the figures, however, shows that The Herald-Republican's figures were 7 out of the way, the discrepancy being caused by a transposition of figures. The table published by the Tribune, however, showed many errors, chief of which was the omission of the First district entirely and the substitution of the figures of the Twenty-third district for those of the First.

First.
Election betting was extremely light and there were few takers for Bransford money offered at odds of 4 and 5 to 1 on the general results. Next to the betting on Murdoch and Wallace; the most popular bet was that Bransford would receive a majority, and there was considerable bet ting on the councilmanic ticket and or the proposition as to whether the Ameri-cans would elect eight men. The official vote will not be known un-

The official vote will not be known until next Monday night, after the city council meets to canvass the returns. This count may show a difference of eight or ten votes, caused by mistaking the figures 7 and 8, but there will be no change in the general results. Bets on Murdoch and Wallace, however, will not be paid by all the brokers until after the official count.

Real Estate Men Disagree With Unions Regarding Conditions in Salt Lake.

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Salt Lake Real Estate association at the Commercial club yesterday afternoon the matter of the alleged scarcity of labor in this city was discussed and commented on by the members present. The members of the association take issue with the labor unions for stating that there is enough labor to supply the demands.

DOLLY AT THE WHEEL OF HER AMERICAN TRAVELER.

looks he very much resembles the great song composer, Charles K. Harrin but his gliding motion," she kept remission is of a different nature. Salt Lakers have reason to be proud of him, for he has achieved a feat during the past two years which has won him five gold medals, the enmity of three of the oldest chocolate establishments on earth, and the applause of the world.

His struggle for the possession of a great secret would furnish material for a splendid play, for it is brim full of the keenest dramatic interest. Only his courage and will have landed him at the close of two years incessant work with stellar honors and a blaze of glory, the victor in a game hundreds before him have tried to play and falled.

Left Polling Place When Police Attacked Deputy Sheriff on Election Day.

Mrs. Rose Woolley, in referring to the falled.

A Great Secret.

Many will doubtless be surprised to learn that the great secret of real sol-uble cocoa and milk chocolate has been since its discovery the secret of the Dutch. Up till two years ago only three great establishments knew the three great establishments knew the process. Now it is in possession of four, for that enterprising genIus of the candy business, J. C. McDonald, has figured it out for himself and has at his Salt Lake plant the very latest improved machinery the world has ever produced for the manufacture of chocolate and process in the care of the contract of the care of the contract of the care of the produced for the manufacture of choco-late and cocoa. Judge of how great is his achievement when you know that the greatest candy makers of the world are dependent upon just a few con-cerns for their supply of chocolate. Mr. McDonald makes and blends his own. The McDonald Chocolate company has been established for forty-five years, during which time, like the rest, it was dependent upon others for its chocolate supply. Now it is quite independent and markets is goods in New York. Boston and other metropolitan centers, where it has won an ever increasing opularity because connoisseurs have been quick to appreciate their candy, up, but it is expected especially the superior blend of the chocolate coverings.

Health Officer.

In the guise of a health officer I was permitted to see the factory from cellar to attic and I must acknowledge hat for spotless cleanliness, skilled that for spotless cleanliness, skilled employes and the quality of its products, this great plant nears perfection.

I was admitted into the chocolate department, the secret of which is so carefully guarded that one must give a signal in order to gain an entrance. I found myself in a stock room which contained many curious looking imcontained many curious looking im-ported sacks of cocoa beans. The grade of the contents of these sacks, which are shipped from Africa and South America, was indicated by means of vertical stripes passing through the center, varying in color, width and number according to the quality of the contents. Great machines clean the beans and roast them, after which a marvelous invention with three hop-pers shells them, turning out the cocos pers shells them, turning out the cocoa nibs. The next process removes the germ. This, too, is a wonderful machine, for it empties the nutritious meats into receivers ready for grinding. The pulverizing process is similar to that employed in the making of flour, only the machinery is constructed differently and is made to the smallest datail in Dreaden Germany. There is detail in Dresden, Germany. There no more costly machinery made. T oil is extracted and as a final process the cocoa is forced through squares of silk so fine that it is quite costly.

Making Chocolate.

The next process I saw was chocolate making. Machines of a mechanism baffling description made the chocolate, mixing the chocolate dust, to my astonishment, with the oil or cocoa buter which had just been extracted. No human hand touches the chocolate in human hand touches the chocolate in either process.

Then I saw candy making. I was amazed to see some of the candy molded into shape in molds of pure cornstarch. Great machines turn out rack after rack of these molds, which, after a drying process, are filled by other wonderful machines with delicious candy. Chocolates are entirely hand mage.

Even the centers are carefully com-pounded like the batter of a cake, and are rolled out and cut with molds like cookie cutters.

In this great department rows and rows of neat, busy girls were seated at long tables dipping these fillings into chocolate and other tempting looking coverings. These young ladies worked with marvelous rapidity filling trays with delicious confections which they carried when full to an inspector, balancing the tray on the palm of the hand and holding it high above their heads. They managed them with such devictive that it was laurently to heads. They managed them with such dexterity that it was laughable. No piece of candy is allowed to be packed which is not first inspected. Many of the delicious fillings are made with eggs and cream.

"McDonald Feeds the World" in gay letters was the only information given the jealous and curious observer.

"What does McDonald feed the world to make it wear such a satisfied smile?" I asked myself for the thousandth time yesterday, and now I know. He feeds it candy that would please the gots. Likewise, I have discovered who McDonald is. He is a progressive Salt Laker, who would be a credit to the coming century. In looks he very much resembles the great song composer, Charles K. In other Greek murder cases in the past an oath has been administered to the foreigners differing from that of the United States oath, but this was not done yesterday—merely the straight oath of telling the truth. The interpreter for the state, Charles Soter, said he believed this oath would be as binding upon the Greeks as the oath of their own country, and it was the only one given.

Elmer E. Mackay, deputy county surveyor, was the first and only witness placed on the stand yesterday. Mr. Mackay had gone to the house in Bingham Canyon where, it is charged, Kothiaftis murdered Peter Getis on Dec. 23, 1908. A diagram of the house was exhibited to the court and jurors and explained by Mr. Mackay. Much attention was paid by Samuel A. King, attorney for the defense, in regard to the bullet holes in the wall of the cabin, and those in the door. These had been recorded by the deputy surveyor and were taken down. The defense will hope to prove by these shots and other evidence that Kothiaftis fired and killed Getis only to save his own life.
